The Paris Presse says the Cabinet will, to-day, discuss the question of suppressing the Patriotic League. AN EXCITED SOUTHRON.

He Proposes an Educational Qualification in the Interest of Political Freedom.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 27 .- The Dispatch, of Montgomery, has been for some days agitating the question of a constitutional convention to prescribe an educational qualification for voters.

The Dispatch to-morrow will say editorially: "We have scant respect for, or patience with, those Southern newspapers and politicians who hesitate to discuss their local affairs unreservedly for fear of giving offense in Kansas or Ohio. Our idea is that Alabama should manage Alabama's affairs in her own way, and that if Kanwe said yesterday that the Legislature ought to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of adopting and defining new qualifications for voters in Alabama. W repeat it-we urge it with all the earnestness at our command. Every calamity we have suffered in the past, every peril that menaces us in the future, is directly referable to the fact that the right of suffrage then resided, and now resides, with a vast body of men unfitted by ignorance and degradation to exercise it for the good of society. But for the memory of the travail and the terror through which we passed in the dark period lying between 1866 and 1876, we could look back over our past without the lightest gossamer of regret. But for the dread of what the Republican restoration may bring forth, we could face the future with a heart of hope. The curse, how-ever, hems us in. Behind us lies the ghastly record of ten years of horror. Before us stretches the dilating vista of alarm. Do we long for the day when no President's frown will threaten our repose, and when the conspiracies of party henchmen will trouble us less than the lightest zephyr that ripples down a moonbeam? Would we be politically free ourselves? Then let us rise up and swear that we will have it so. Harrison, with Foraker, Fairchild, Halstead and Medill yelping at his heels, is clamoring for a 'free ballot and a fair count.' Very well; let us give it to him."

THE FIRE RECORD.

Church Destroyed, with a Loss of $65,000-

Narrow Escape of Firemen. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 27 .- The beautiful brown-stone church of the First Congregational Society at Northampton was ruined by fire this afternoon. The building was new and cost $65,000; insurance, $50,000. The fire started by the upsetting of a plumber's lantern. An exciting incident of the fire to-day was the narrow escape of three firemen who were shut into the tower by the flames. They rang the bell vigorously, and after much effort they were pulled out of the belfry nearly suffocated. One fireman was badly cut by a falling slate. George W. Cable, the novelist, joined the firemen in their work and was one of the most active and efficient men on the scene.

Other Fires.

GUELPH, Ont. Nov. 26.-The barns of the Ontario government model farm were burned yesterday. Loss, $30,000.

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 27.-The barn of S. W. Poe, a farmer living eight miles east of this city, was burned, with all its contents, including hay, grain, and agricultural implements. There is no clue to the origin of the fire. Insurance of $800, in the Agricultural Company, of Watertown, N. Y.

Bellaire, Md., Nov. 27 .- The canping-house of Megill Brothers was destroyed by fire Saturday night. Twelve thousand cases of canned corn, 8,000 empty cases, and all the machinery and fixtures were burned. There are evidences that the building was set on fire. There was $28,000 insurance.

Epecial to the Indianapolis Journal. DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 27.-The high-school building at Rossville was destroyed by fire this morning. There was no school in session at the time. The building cost $18,000, and was insured in the Home, of New York, and Peoria, of Illinois, for $10,000. It is not known how the fire originated.

Madison, Ind., Nov. 27 .- A fire, this morning, in the green-house of John G. Hitz was soon under control, and although but little of the woodwork was burned, the smoke and heat inflicted severe damage to the plants, palms, cacti and other rare exotics. The loss caused by their destruction, broken glass, etc., will amount to $1,500. Insured for $500 in the Ætna Insurance Company.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal LAFAYETTE, Nov. 27. - The saloon and residence of Killian Meyers, and the saloon of Theodore Saers, at Elstun, south of this city, were de-stroyed by fire. Meyer had $800 insurance on stock and furniture in the Springfield, of Springfield, Mass., and Saers had $400 on building and $475 on stock in the Phœnix, of Hartford. OBITUARY.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

Judge Frederick W. Viehe, a Prominent Jurist of Vincennes.

VINCENNES, Nov. 27 .- Judge Frederick W. Viehe died suddenly at his home in this city this afternoon. It was a great surprise to the members of the bar, for the Judge had been seen on the street the day before in his usual health. The family and friends are in deep distress. Court was in session at the time, and on the information of his death it adjourned at once. The bar will take appropriate action on his death to-morrow. He leaves a wife and three children.

Judge Viehe was born in Prussia, in 1832, and when a boy came to America with his father's family. In 1858 he came to Knox county, where he was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law. No man had a better knowledge of the law than he had, and none were his superior as a judge of law. He was elected to the General Assembly in 1876, and two years later was Senator from Knox and Sullivan counties. In his profession he was safe, cautions, conscientious and successful.

Other Deaths.

ELKHART, Ind., Nov. 27 .- Peter Irvin, aged eighty-three years, one of Elkhart's oldest and most highly-respected citizens, died last night. Berne, Nov. 27 .- M. Hertenstein, President of Switzerland, who underwent amputation of his right leg, last week, because of disease of the arteries, is dead.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.-Surgeon Simon, of the United States steamer Boston, died at 9:30 P. M. yesterday of yellow fever. The two other patients are steadily improving and the rest of Leprosy Among Canadian Indians. OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 27 .- Word has been rereived that the Chinese lepers in British Columas have communicated their terrible malady to the Indians, who in that province number 50,000. Senator McInnis, M. P. from British Columbia, states that out of the total Indian population, which he places at 40,000, he believes there will not be 5,000 living in a quarter of a century, as a result of the leprosy. The Columbia authorities have for several years been officially informed of the presence of the Chinese lepers, but took little or no action against them, fearing that the agitation of the subject would turn away the tide of emigrarion coming irom Europe.

The Cut-Natl Manufacturers. WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 27 .- An adjourned meeting of the principal mills belonging to the Western Cut-nail Association was held in this city to-day. The object of the meeting was to fuether consider a plan to pool their products and regulate prices. The prospect is that a feasible plan will be finally adopted at a meeting to be held early in December.

SHIPWRECKS OF THE STORM

Steamer Allentown Goes Ashore, and Nineteen Persons Thought to Be Lost.

A Number of Vessels Beached at Various Points, but the Loss of Life Is Comparatively Small-Damage Near Quebec.

ON THE ATLANTIC COAST.

The Steamer Allentown Wrecked and Nine teen Persons Supposed to Be Drowned, Boston, Nov. 27 .- A dispatch from Cohassett, Mass., says: All day long wreckage of various descriptions has been coming ashore along the beach, more particularly at Sandy cove. Huge timbers, spars, cabin furniture, fine inside finishings, chairs, life preservers, and other articles appertaining to a steamer's outfit, and many of them stamped with the words "Allentown," have been seen in the breakers off shore, and found scattered along the water front. This wreckage tells plainly that the fine iron steamer Allentown has been broken up on one of the huge sunken ledges off this port, always a terror to mariners. She cleared from Philadelphia on the 21st instant for Salem, Mass., with 1,660 tons of coal, and was commanded by Captain Odlorne, with a crew of eighteen men. The vessel is one of the Philadelphia and Read ing Coal and Iron Company's line of colliers. Capt. Nathaniel W. Treat, one of Cohassett's oldest sea-faring men, and from whom the first intimation of the disaster came, said that in his opinion the vessel had foundered, either on sea ledges, or on the Grampus, which are long, sunken ledges lying about three miles from the nearest point of the main land. If such is the case the vessel must have gone down with all on board within a very few minutes after striking. Since the early reports of the supposed catastrophe many of the villagers have been seen and they say that they distinctly heard a steamer's whistle shortly after noon on Sunday, repeated at brief intervals for an hour or more, as if signaling for assistance, or a pilot. It was so thick at the time that nothing could be seen at so great a distance from the shore, and even if any observation could have been made, no boat could have lived in the tremendous sea then prevailing.

The schooner Lasano, before reported as stranded on Pleasant beach, has gone to pieces. Her deck was lifted clear off. The vessel lies in a confused mass on the beach beside the bull of another steamer. About Damon's Pavilion, at the head of Nantasket long beach, the shore is strewn with wreckage from the schooners H. C. Higginson and Materon. The Higginson is rapidly going to pieces. Her masts, however, are still standing, and it is hoped that the foremast at least will remain upright until low water tomorrow morning, when an attempt will be made to remove the body of J. Brems, the steward, who remains lashed to the foretop. This morning Mrs. Brems visited the scene and was prostrated by the spectacle of the dead body of her husband lashed to the rigging of a vessel which, in all probability, will go to pieces before the body can be reached. At the Hotel Nantasket the covered promenade connecting it with the Reckland Cafe, was partly destroyed by the wind. The wrecked brig Alice is rapidly breaking up, and has been stripped of everthing portable, including her miscellaneous and somewhat damaged cargo, which was appropriated by the residents of the vicinity. At Provincetown, the schooner Minnie Pavne before reported ashore in the harbor, is full of water, and her keel is partly gone. The fishing schooner Franklin is also ashore on the flat in the harbor, with her bowsprit gone. The fishing schooner Ocean Ranger broke adrift from Herring cove Sunday, and went out in the bay. Ten small fishing boats were sunk at their moorings or went ashore more or less damaged. The schooner Charles Worsley, of Bangor, came ashore on Scorton Ibeach, yesterday morning. The crew was saved, and very little damage was done to the yessel. She will probably be floated. The schooner Susan P. Thurlow, Captain Tabbutt, of Philadelphia, for Portland, Me., with 650 tons of soft coal, parted both chains off Bass river at 5 P. M. on the 25th, and went ashore on the southwest grounds off Hyannis and bilged. The vessel and cargo will probably

First mate C. D. Wright and Martin Haley, seamen of the steamer Carroll from Charlottetown, were swept overboard by a big wave and drowned off Thatcher's island yesterday. The steamer has arrived here somewhat damaged. A New York dispatch says. The steamers

Hans and Kurt. Arizona, Gallia and Wyanoke were the only vessels to reach port to-day. All report having been caught in the hurricane, but as far as at present known, the first named is the only one that sustained damage, and that is about the deck. The schooner Jonathan May, from Savannah to this city, with lumber, was driven ashore at Sandy Hook last night. She lies high and dry on the beach. It is probable that she will go to pieces as the surf is very high.

How the Summer Resorts Fared. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 27 .- The storm has abated and the sun is now shining brightly. A survey of the situation shows that no such destruction of property on this beach has been known since the incorporation of the city. Hundreds of property-owners from Philadelphia and other localities have come down, fearing their property would be swept away last night. The tide receded to-day, and the sen, under the influence of a strong northwest wind, was beaten down, but the result, especially in the lower portions of the city, is one of almost complete destruction. The work of the waves was quick and complete, and the individual losses are numerous. In the Excursion House district the destruction of the property is enormous, although unexpected, as the survey shows that for twenty years the beach in that section has changed but little, and danger from storms was not anticipated. The beach, to-day, is lined with thousands of residents and visitors, including photographers and artists, sketching the ruins. Many of the sufferers by the storm are people of moderate means, and their losses will be severely felt in the coming winter.

COHASSETT, Mass., Nov. 27.-Summer cottages and similar structures on the water front are wrecked and their ruins line the beaches. Many of the beautiful drives to the summer residences are washed away or badly gullied and covered with wreckage. The greatest damage to land property is along Crescent beach, between Green hill and Gun rock. Along this stretch is a line of from twenty to thirty small summer cottages, averaging in size about twenty by thirty feet. There is not a single one of these that does not bear marks of the terrible force of the storm. Some of them were lifted from their foundations and carried back several feet. The total loss to property on this beach will reach many thousand dollars. At the Atlantic House the damage by water to carpets and ceilings is estimated at $5,000.

THE STORM IN CANADA.

Numerous Vessels Caught in the Gale and Ice with a Probable Loss of Many Lives. MONTREAL, Nov. 27 .- One of the most severe storms of snow and wind known here for years broke over this province and Ontario Sunday evening and still continues. The wind at times blew as hard as seventy miles per hour. The streets and surrounding country are covered with snow-drifts, ten feet deep in places, and the most severe cold prevails. Horse-car lines here have stopped running. Forty-four people were picked up in the streets by the police on Sunday night, unable to make their way through the storm, being either benumbed by the cold or bewildered by the winds.

The storm was felt more severely on the lower St. Lawrence than anywhere else. The steamer Pomeranian, bound for Liverpool, which was grounded, also made an attempt to reach Quebee on Sunday with the aid of four tugs. She got as far as Battiscan, forty-four miles this side of Quebec, where she anchored for the night. Yesterday not only the steamships but the tugs, too, were frozen in solid. The Pomeranish will not get through this season. Her bows are badly cut by the ice, and the channel being so narrow she will probably be forced ashore on the rocks and become a total loss. The Allan Steamship Company, which owns her, will lose over $300,000.

At Quebec the gale is raging furiously, and New Y the iron ferry-boats that ply between that point Bremen.

and Point Levis are caught in the ice, which threatens to crush them. The steamship Poline. bound from Cape Breton to Quebec, was seen struggling against the gale and ice in the gulf, off Fame Point, 320 miles below Quebec, at daylight yesterday. She suddenly disappeared and has not been seen or reported since. There are fears that she has been lost. She had forty passengers, a crew of thirty and a general cargo. L'Islet and Rivier du Loupe report blinding snow-storms with heavy gales. Point Masqueran signal station reports a brig caught in the ice, powerless in the gale, and flying signals of distress. Her name cannot be made out nor can help reach her. Telegraph wires are down everywhere, and all railroads are badly blocked, trains being greatly delayed. At New Castle six schooners have been caught and crushed in the ice, and a similar fate has overtaken ten vessels at Chatham. Five vessels are caught opposite this city and will be crushed.

THE DISPUTED RETURNS.

The Tennessee Canvassers Unable to Agree as to Who Is Elected.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 27 .- The State board of canvassers, to whom all returns are certified, failed to agree upon the contest for the certificate to Congress from the third district, Gov. Taylor indorses the claim to the seat of H. C. Evans, Republican. Secretary of State Allison, the other member of the board, declares Bates, Democrat, was legally elected. Whether the certificate can be issued to either Bates or Evans with the board thus equally divided, has not been decided and will not be determined until further consideration, which has been deferred until next Monday.

Louisiana. NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 27.-A special from Baton Rouge to the Picayune says the State board of canvassers to-day issued certificates to all Congressmen elected at the recent election, including H. Dudley Coleman (Rep.), in the Second district. The only difficulty encountered in the canvass grew out of the returns in the Second district, where votes were cast S. D. Coleman, H. D. Dudley Coleman, and Hamilton D. Coleman; Ben C. Elliott, Benjamin C. Elliott, and B. C. Elliott. If each of these names represented a distinct individual, B. C. Elliott (Democrat) has a majority exceeding 1,000. The board decided that the Coleman name, being written correctly in all its styles, was sufficient indication of the individual for whom the vote was cast, and that Coleman's majority is 174.

West Virginia CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 27 .- There was no motion made before the Supreme Court, to-day, of a restraining nature, as heretofore sent out. A motion of prohibition will be made by Democrats, to-morrow, to this court, to prevent counting of certain precincts in this (Kanawha) county by the county commissioners. The matter will come up at 10 A. M., if Judge Fleming arrives on time. Maryland. ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.-The contests in the Fourth and Fifth Congressional districts were virtually settled to-day. Governor Jackson said positively to-night that he would tomorrow issue certificates in accordance with the face of the returns. This will give certificates to Henry Stockbridge, jr. (Rep.), in the Fourth, and Barnes Compton (Dem.), in the Fifth district. Mr. Mudd will carry the contest against Compton to Washington. Official Vote of Illinois. CHICAGO, Nov. 27 .- The official canvass of the Illinois election returns was finished to-day, Fifer, the Republican candidate for Governor, has 12,532 plurality over Palmer, Democrat.

Harrison's plurality over Cleveland is 21,881.

A BIG LOCK-OUT.

Brewery Owners Order a Lock-Oout in Re taliation for a Boycott.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 .- The boss ale and porter brewers of New York and New Jersey, at a meeting this afternoon, decided to lock out all their union men and employ non-union men to-morrow. This is because of the continued boycott on Stevenson's brewery in this city. This is the formal action taken by the amployers, prompted by the boycott by their employes upon the em-

Whereas, The ale and porter brewers of New York city and vicinity have kept in good faith the pledge made March 26, 1888, to maintain the same wages and hours as had prevailed in the previous years; Whereas, Notwithstanding this fact, an organiza tion of brewery workingmen, known as the Brewery

Employes' Protective Association, is engaged in boy cotting two of our members, and has come to a determination to force us, one by one, to employ none but members of their organization, thus subverting not only our rights, but the rights of our employes; and Whereas, The demand which we have made, that the boycott be removed, has not been complied with,

Resolved. That at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, Nov. 28, every man in our employ who will not pledge himself to stop contributing to the funds of the Brewery Workingmen's Protective Association, or to any other, so long as it may be engaged in promoting the boycott, be immediately discharged.

Resolved. That at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day we assemble in this room to determine what future measures are necessary to protect our rights and property, and at that time and place each member shall report to the meeting the number of their men who have so pledged themselves, and also of the number who have refused, together with the fact that such as refused have actually been discharged.

Must Have Been Some Other Turner.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 27 .- The publication in the morning papers of a report from Boston that Emery S. Turner, formerly of Newburg. N. Y., now of Cortez, this State, had been arrested in that city for offenses of a criminal character, created considerable surprise here, as Mr. Turner is in this city with a party of friends, among whom was A. A. Havemeyer, of New York. To an Associated Press representative Mr. Turner stated that he had never in his life been charged with. much less arrested for, any criminal offense. He, however, stated that recently he had been detained in Boston, on a civil charge, pending the settlement of a claim for money which he was custodian of, and which was settled within an hour after the matters came up. He further stated that he was receiver of the Montezuma Canal Company, in Southern Colorado, in which Mr. Havemeyer was a large stockholder. The receiver was about to be discharged and the property sold under foreclosure on the 29th inst. The settling up of this business had caused some hard feelings among one or two small stockholders in Boston. and he believed the report emanated from some of these personal enemies.

Anti-Saloon Republicans.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 .- The National Anti-Saloon Republican committee met to-day, and the sub-committee appointed at the last meeting to report a plan for future work having reported a failure to agree, a plan was discussed and referred for further action to the executive committee, which meets next week. It was decided to issue an address to the people of the country calling attention to the Anti-Saloon Republican organization; to the work it has accomplished, and what it intends to do for the future. Among those present were Albert Griffith, of Kansas; Z. K. Pangborn, of New Jersey; Dr. H. K. Carroll, of New York; Alex. S. Bacon, Judge Noah Davis, N. T. Evans, of Philadelphia; Carroll S. Page, of Vermont: H. B. Metcalf, of Rhode Island; ex-Senator Windom, of Minnesota; Rev. Mr. Wright, of Kentucky, and Rev. McArthur, of New York.

Corner-Stone of the New Vanderburg County Court-House Laid.

special to the Indianapotis Journa

EVANSVILLE, Nov. 27 .- The corner-stone of the new Vanderburg county court-house was laid here to-day, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. It was an event of unusual importance, and a general holiday took place. Among the State officers present were Treasurer Lemcke, Auditor Carr, and Superintendent of Public Instruction LaFollette. Addresses were made by Judge Wm. F. Parrett, of this city, Judge Laird and Judge Barkwell of Rockport. The ceremonies were very impressive, and were conducted in the presence of several thousand people. A big demonstration in the shape of a parade took place before the laying of the stone, which was participated in by most of the secret and civic organizations in this city. In the corner-stone were deposited a variety of articles, local newspapers, coins, etc. Mr. Thomas E. Garwell, a prominent attorney, was master of ceremonies. The edifice is to be thoroughly fire-proof, and will be as solid and elegant a structure as there is in the State. It will cost a half million dollars. H. Walters, of Louisville, Ky., is the architect. Chas. Pearce & Co., of Indianapolis, are the contractors. The building will be ready for occupancy within two years.

Stole Money to Attend a Barbecue. Special to the Indianapolis Journa.

GREENSBURG, Nov. 27 .- George Wright, eighteen years old, lives near Gaynorsville, this county, and worked on the farm for Samuel Ketchum. He wanted to go to the Democratic barbecue last September, at Shelbyville, and came to town and engaged the company of two girls for the occasion. When he returned to Ketchum's he learned that his father had instructed his employer to pay him (the father) wages due the son. This was sore disappointment to the boy, for he needed the money to pay the expenses to the barbecue. Young Wright had a room with his employer's son, Thomas Ketchum, who, on Sunday morning, the day before the barbecue, missed his pocket-book, containing $47. He at once accused Wright of taking the money, but was met with a prompt denial. Wright came to town, left part of the money with a friend, went with his girls to the barbecue and had a good time. When about to return home he found that his pocketwith his return tickets, had stolen; but, fortunately, had enough money in his pocket to get home with his girls. The next, day when again accused of taking the money he admitted it, and returned what he had left here with a friend. He

The Cherokee Oil King, a Well-Known Character, Dies in the Poor-House.

Shelbyville Special to Chicago Tribune.

Dr. W. H. Mosley, a somewhat eccentric character who has been talked about a good deal for some months, died last night at the county almshouse. He was born in Virginia, his mother having some Indian blood in her veins. He was six feet three inches in height, with straight, coal-black bair, which hung down on his shoulders. He was a striking figure. He made his advent here some two years ago, calling himself Dr. Mosley, the Cherokee Oil King, and for a time did a lucrative business extracting teeth without pain and selling his Cherokee oil. He attracted great crowds with his fine turnout and minstrel troupe. He made money and was lavish with it. While here he became infatuated with pretty Annie Schoen, and her mother being opposed to his attentions the couple eloped to Trenton, N. J., where they were married. He lavished his money on her and loaded her with jewels. They created a sensation wherever they went Through the dishonesty of his employee he lost his business. He went South, and three months ago returned here to his wife, penniless and in the last stages of consumption. His young wife refused to take care of him, and the authorities sent him to the poor-house, where he died, his last days being made comfortable by a former wife whom he had deserted to take up with a new love.

Well-Contested Battle Between Havlin and Warren, in Which the Former Is Worsted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27 .- Featherweights Jack Havlin and Tommy Warren met at the rooms of California Athletic Club, to-night, and fought for a purse of $1,000. According to the stipulations the men entered the ring at 118 pounds, and both appeared in excellent condition. When Havlin arrived here from the East, a few weeks ago, he weighed 135 pounds, and it has only been by a severe course of training that his weight reduced to the required standard. The betting before the fight was not very heavy. and the odds offered were generally in favor of Warren. The crowd began to gather in the club-rooms long before the hour set for the fight, and by the time the two pugilists entered the ring there were probably 1,000 persons present. Hiram Cook, of this city, was referee. The contestants entered the ring together, and were given an enthusiastic reception. Time was called at 9:15. Warren opened the round by pushing Havlin to the floor. The latter quickly regained his feet and an interchange of light blows followed. Warren had the best of the round throughout and succeeded in getting in several good blows. On the beginning of the second round Warren forced the fighting and planted several telling blows on Havlin's face. Red spots appeared at once on the latter's eyes and forehead. Several clinches followed, with some sharp in-fighting. In the third round Warren again forced the fight, and drove Havlin around the ring, raining blows on his head. Havlin got in several blows, which did not seem to worry Warren much. The fourth round opened with the sharpest kind of fighting, which was kept up until the close. Warren led with one hand after the other, and kept Havlin moving all around the ring. He also succeeded in starting blood freely from Havlin's nose, and by the time the round closed Havlin's face and body were covered with blood. Havlin was knocked down twice in this round by terrific blows on the

The next two rounds were repetitions of the former. Warren followed up every advantage he gained, and made Havlin stagger under his blows. It was plain that the latter was getting groggy, and he offered but little resistance. Blood continued to flow from his nose, and also from a cut under the eye. In the seventh round, however, Havlin appeared to grow fresher. In the eighth he caught Warren two ugly blows on the neck. He also began to try for Warren's wind, but gained very little advantage. The fight progressed with varying success, and Havlin appeared during the next few rounds to be recovering He struck savagely at Warren, but generally fell short, as the latter saved himself by jump ing away quickly. In the thirteenth cound the men clinched, and Havlin was throwd roughly to the floor. Havelin did but little in the next few rounds Warren continued to have the best of the fight. and whenever an opening occurred he would send in a hard one on Havlin's head. In the eighteenth round Havlin was knocked against the ropes and a clinch followed. Warren threw Havlin heavily to the floor. Loud cries of "foul" were heard, but the claim was not allowed. In the nineteenth round Havlin led out savagely three times, and each time caught Warren well on the chin or in the eye, which caused blood to

The last few rounds of the fight were the most brutal ever seen in this city. It was evident to everyone that Havlin had no possible chance of winning. In the twenty-first round be was knocked down twice, and after that he was hardly able to strike a blow. Warren was apparently almost as fresh as in the beginning of the fight, and a swollen lip was the only disfigurement to be seen upon him. Havlin, on the contrary, presented a most pitiable appearance; his lips and eyes were terribly swollen, and blood covered every part of his face and the front part of his body. In the twenty-second round he was knocked down once, and the next round fire times. In the twenty-fourth round he was hardly able to stand, and Warren sent him to the floor six times. He came forward gamely for the twenty-fifth but was hardly upon his feethefore Warren sent him under the ropes. To the surprise of everyone he again stood up, only to be knocked under the ropes a second time. This time, also, he made an effort to rise, but was only upon his knees when "time" was called and the referee awarded the fight to War-

MR. MOODY AT HOME.

A Rollicking Boy with Fun and Business Enough on Hand for Several Men.

Lecture of T. M. Hanes, at Louisville. Many interesting facts concerning Mr. Moody's life and work were told by the speaker; among them were the following: The great evangelist lives at Northfield, Mass., a little town of 1,500 inhabitants, in the foot-hills of the Green mountains. Moody's home is a large white house, with green blinds, at the end of the principal street of the village. The yard is large and full of shade trees, and there is no fence about the grounds. In his home life Mr. Moody is full of fun and pranks, and is like a big rollicking boy with his children, who delight in telling jokes on their father, which the great preacher enjoys as much as any one. He is full of business and always in a hurry. He has good horses and delights in pulling his slouch hat over his eyes and whirling along the smooth roads tugging at the reins from the high driver's seat of a victoria that was recently presented to him. In spite of the immense work that he accomplishes he has the happy faculty of going to sleep like a child soon after tea, when there is no work or particularly interesting conversation to keep him awake.

In addition to his vast work as an evangelist, Mr. Moody manges two large schools at Northfield. Adjoining his home is the Female Seminary, with seven large buildings and accommodations for 300 pupils. At the other end of the town is the Mt. Hermon Male Academy. where 300 young men are enrolled. The requirements for admission are that the most satisfactory and ample recommendations must be brought to show that the student is one who really wishes to profit by the educational facilities offered. The total cost to a young man for board and tuition is only $100 per year. While a great many poor students of both sexes avail themselves of the low rates, there are also representatives of the richest families in the country. One regulation of Mr. Moody's is that every student shall devote at least two hours every day to necessary and genuine work, on the theory that this much of daily toil is essential to a healthy condition of mind and body. The schools represent an investment of $500,-000, all collected by Moody, but all of this is vested in a board of trustees, and the founder has no financial claim on the institutions. The sum of $20,000 has to be raised every year for the maintenance of the schools, and the great patron manages this without any apparent effort. From the proceeds of the sales of the Gospel Hymns, $60,000 has come to the schools. There are yearly twice as many applications for admission as can be received. Each of the schools has a large and productive farm attached to it, the one at the boys' academy being in charge of Moody's brother.

The students of both schools are deeply attached to the great evangelist, and his influence over them is unbounded. With his usual insight into human nature and his thorough devotion to the work of genuine conversion, Mr. Moody never makes any personal effort to induce his pupils to make a profession of religion. His reason for taking this singular course is that he knows his influence and does not wish to have the young people act from a desire to please him instead of from conscientious motives. The result of this policy is that there is a perfect confidence between Mr. Moody and the students, and nearly every one of them is converted before leaving the schools. A Boston Landlady's Poser.
